"April Fool's day", it is celebrated on April 1st, and among the countries which celebrate this day, we can mention Germany, France, Poland, Finland, Italy, United Kingdom, Australia, Portugal, United States, Canada and Brazil. Did you notice? No Spanish speaking country celebrate this day, why? Because countries such as Spain, Mexico, Honduras, Colombia, Venezuela and even Chile celebrate "Day of the innocents" much _____ (late) than "April fool's day", on December the 28th, it is also important to say that "day of the innocents" is (old) than "April Fool's day" Do you remember that I mentioned that these festivities were similar? What people normally do in these days is to make jokes or pranks to each other, this is, spread fake news, invite you to an inexistent party, give each other absurd presents etc...

What also make them different is the reason why they are celebrated, but sure you can research and make a talk about that!
